

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

REPORT.

To the Legislature of the State of New York:

The total assessment of real and personal property for the year 1897 reaches an aggregate of $4,999,268,900, of which $4,349,882,088 is the assessment of real property, and $649,386,812 of personal property.

As comparing with the year 1896, there is an increase of $308,055,502 in the assessment of real estate and $105,075,255 of personal property, making a total increase of $413,130,757. The total increase in the assessment of real and personal property for the year 1896 over the year 1895 was $135,663,644, making a grand total of increase for the past two years in both real and personal assessment of $548,794,401.

The total increase for the year 1895 over 1894 was $46,698,372, and there was a decrease in the assessment of personal property in 1895 as compared with 1894 of $20,572,257.

Of this large increase during the two years since the revised tax law of 1896 went into operation, a comparatively small portion represents an actual addition to the taxable wealth of the State.

By far, the larger proportion is attributable to a more conscientious compliance with the requirements of the statute, regarding the methods of assessment. Our instructions to local assessors, construing the requirement of law that all property be assessed at full value, in its application to real estate, having invariably been to the effect that they should assess the same at the value which they would agree upon if selected as arbitrators to determine the price which the owner should take and a prospective buyer should give, in the desire to do absolute justice to both parties, so that the owner should not sacrifice his property nor the buyer give more than its fair value. It is generally conceded that the personal property, liable to assessment in this State, fully equals, and probably exceeds, the value of the real estate. As the total personal assessment, notwithstanding the large increase above reported, is only about one-seventh of the assessment of real property, it is manifest that the operation of the law under present conditions, as regards the taxation of personal property, is still a practical failure; and the causes of congratulation for an increase of even one hundred and five millions of personal assessment are not strikingly apparent. Even the enforcement of the law resulting in such increase has, in many instances, caused added injustice to rural communities, where the burden of taxation has hitherto fallen most heavily.

Of all the personal property liable to assessment in agricultural districts, 90 per cent. is of a visible, tangible character, open to the observation of the assessor, and which he cannot overlook in the honest discharge of his official duty; while in the cities by far the larger proportion is intangible, easily concealed, and of a kind which successfully defies the most conscientious effort on the part of the assessor to reach it.

It is a melancholy reflection that in this Christian age, neither the memory of early moral training nor present religious profession, hopes or fears for the hereafter, the penalties of the law, nor any other possible considerations are sufficient to restrain the average possessor of personal property from forcing other men to pay the taxes for which he is justly liable, by methods unquestionably immoral, if not absolutely criminal.

In their report to the Legislature for the year 1882, the State assessors of that period stated that they did not regard it as any part of their duty to frame a general theory of taxation, or to discuss the abstract principles of political economy, which are commonly treated as applicable to the subject, but simply to submit certain suggestions for the improvement of the system as it existed. We think they were wise in that conclusion, and propose to follow their example, possibly influenced to such a course by a knowledge of the fate which has befallen all recommendations involving radical changes in the law relating to taxation heretofore made, whether by State assessors or by special commissions appointed by the Legislature for the purpose of investigating, reporting upon and possibly advising the adoption of some new system.

In 1862, the Assembly appointed a committee to investigate the general subject of taxation, and, in the same year, the Senate appointed another committee for the same purpose, both being required to report a bill embodying the results of their labor. They joined forces and worked together, and, in the following February, made an elaborate report, with many recommendations, none of which were adopted.

In 1870, Governor John T. Hoffman, under the authority of a joint resolution of the two houses of the Legislature, appointed David A. Wells, Edwin Dodge and George W. Cuyler commissioners to revise the laws for the assessment and collection of taxes. They investigated the subject with great thoroughness, and, in February, 1871, made a most able and exhaustive report, concerning which, Governor Hoffman, in transmitting it to the Legislature, said:

"It is apparent that the report contains a great amount of information and of argument which will afford most valuable aid to the Legislature and the people in coming to an intelligent judgment upon the questions involved. No subject is more important than this one to the interests of the people, and, consequently, none is more worthy of your attention. * * * It is right that New York, the State foremost in population and wealth, should take the lead in investigating this great question, and in adopting such improvements as are shown to be valuable. The interests of the people require a method of taxation at once equitable, effective and free from unnecessary oppression; one which will yield the requisite revenue while subjecting them as little as possible to inquisitorial vexation, and which shall be attended with the least expense for official services and afford the fewest temptations to fraud, concealment or evasion. If the commissioners have succeeded in devising such a system, it should be adopted as early as possible. In view of the importance of the subject to the general welfare, I earnestly commend the report to your immediate and careful consideration. Unless otherwise instructed by the Legislature, the commissioners will deem themselves authorized to go on and complete their work by preparing and submitting such laws as they think necessary to the carrying out of their views."

The commission did go on and completed its labors, and, in February, 1872, made a supplementary report, fully sustaining the high standard which characterized the first, accompanied by a proposed revision of the law, concerning which Governor Hoffman again said:

"Having in my annual message urged upon you an early and considerate examination of the system of taxation presented by the commissioners, it is unnecessary for me to do more now than renew that recommendation, and, at the same time, to express my satisfaction with the labor and care which has manifestly been expended by the commissioners in their conscientious effort to arrive at a uniform, equitable and productive system of taxation."

In this connection, it is interesting to observe that in a report made within the last few months by a Massachusetts commission, appointed to inquire into the expediency of revising and amending the laws of that State relating to taxation, the leading feature advocated by that commission is precisely the one most strongly urged by the commission appointed by Governor Hoffman in this State twenty-six years before. The report of Governor Hoffman's commission is still on file, and remains as a guide to future investigations.

In 1880, another State Tax Commission was created by the Assembly, which labored, reported, and was presumably discharged.

In 1892, Messrs. Chas. A. Collin and J. Newton Fiero were appointed under the provisions of an act of the Legislature, directing the appointment by the Governor of two counsel to examine the laws of this and other States relating to taxation, and to report to the next Legislature the result of their investigations, with recommendations as to legislation relating to assessment and taxation in this State. Their report was made to the Legislature in February, 1893, and, in explaining the character and the extent of their labors, they say:

"We have examined not only the statutes, but the official reports and public documents of other States, as well as the general literature appertaining to the subject, including the works of leading political economists of the day, with a view to ascertaining the theories as well as the practical workings of the various systems in operation.

"The scope of our examination has, therefore, been very broad, and data and statistics have been collected from various sources to such an extent that a mere enumeration of the statutes, reports and authorities upon the subject would constitute a report of undue length. The facts thus obtained can be hereafter collated, if deemed necessary, for the use of the Legislature and the public, and would serve a valuable purpose as an index to the literature of the subject for both present and future reference."

The report was accompanied by a proposed tax law, which failed of adoption, apparently because the Legislature considered some of the changes proposed as too radical. Many of its features, however, were subsequently embodied in a somewhat modified form in the revised law of 1896, now in operation.

Encouragement to new attempts in devising and advising radical changes in the Tax Law is not the most conspicuous result of earlier efforts in that line. We shall, therefore, confine ourselves chiefly to advocating certain amendments directed to the better enforcement of existing provisions.

It seems very difficult for taxpayers generally to understand the apparently simple proposition that the whole question of the justice or injustice of assessments is involved in the matter of uniformity; that it can make no difference to the taxpayer whether his property is assessed at half its value or at full value, if all other property liable to the same burden of taxation is assessed at the same rate.

It can readily be seen that if property is assessed in different counties, or in different towns in the same county, at rates varying from 25 to 100 per cent. of full value, the problem of equalization, both as between the separate towns and between the various counties of the State, is a very complex and difficult one; while, if an honest attempt is made to apply uniformly the legal standard of actual value, although differences of opinion would, of course, arise as to the accuracy of the results obtained in specific instances, the sum total would be but slightly affected, and very little would remain to be done by way of equalization, and the tax paid by the individual taxpayer would not be increased. Every effort to bring about such uniformity of assessment has been made by this Board during the last two years. In frequent communications with the assessors of the various towns throughout the State, we have urged upon their consideration the fact that such uniformity can only be obtained on the legal basis of assessment at full value, and that the only reason for insisting upon a hundred per cent. rather than any smaller ratio, is because that is the standard fixed by law and no other is recognized. It would seem that this should be sufficient to induce the hearty co-operation of all law-abiding citizens.

While the law has probably been more generally complied with in the assessment of 1897 than ever before, nevertheless, in many counties, assessors of certain towns have failed to conscientiously discharge their duties; and, consequently, in some instances, greater injustice has resulted to those towns in which the assessors have lived up to the law, by reason of their having done so. It is the proper province of boards of supervisors, through local equalization, to guard against such injustice, and to prevent any towns not assessed in accordance with the requirements of the law from reaping any advantage from that fact to the injury of other towns in which the law has been complied with. We regret to say, however, that local equalization, as now administered, frequently results in greater injustice rather than in protection therefrom. No uniform procedure exists in the different counties of the State, and no systematic method of equalization now prevails; the highest ambition of each supervisor being to obtain a reduction in the equalization of his own town, regardless of the fact that it is or is not assessed above or below the average for the county at large.

We are earnestly of the opinion, and strongly advise that the whole matter of the correction of the assessment-rolls and the equalization of assessments between the several towns of each county should be taken out of the hands of the supervisors, and the provisions of chapter 820 of the Laws of 1896 for equalization by a commission, or a new act having the same end in view, should be made of general and compulsory application; and in this view we are supported by many of the most intelligent supervisors with whom we have consulted throughout the State.

In this connection, we would further advise that a uniform system of equalization between the towns be required and made to conform to the methods of the State Board of Equalization in equalizing assessments between the several counties, as follows: From all sources of information available to the supervisors, or the committee on equalization, a percentage for each town should be fixed representing the ratio which the assessed value of the real estate of that town bears to its full value. On the basis of the percentage so fixed, the assessed value of each town should be raised to full value. By dividing the total assessment of the real estate of all the towns by the total raised values of all the towns, an average ratio of assessment for the county will be obtained; multiplying the amount representing the full value of each town, ascertained as above, by this average ratio, will produce the equalized assessment. The total of the equalized assessment will correspond with the total assessments as returned by the assessors of the several towns. Whether any given town is increased or reduced by the equalization, will, of course, depend on whether its percentage of assessment to full value is above or below the average of the county at large, and the amount will be a matter of mathematical computation.

It is believed that this method, honestly applied, will produce a more just and equitable result than any other, making appeals less frequent; and, if the evidence used in fixing the total of percentages is preserved as matter of record, it will greatly simplify the proceedings and lessen the cost of appeals when taken.

It is respectfully submitted that some method should be devised for the assessment of all railroads of the same class at a uniform rate per mile, and we would suggest the feasibility of having such rate fixed by the Railroad Commission with the assistance of the State Engineer.

In the case of the appeal of the State of New York ex rel. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, Appellant, vs. William H. Clapp, et al., as assessors and Henry Walker as supervisor of the town of York, in the county of Livingston, respondents, the Court of Appeals has decided that the assessment cannot exceed the cost of reproduction, and the court says: "There is no reason that we can perceive for assessing this property at a greater sum than the cost of replacement. It may not in every place be worth what it would cost to replace it. That would depend upon the income or earning capacity of the road after it is built. But this is the case of a paying railroad; and, when valued at what it would cost to procure the land, construct the roadbed, put down the ties and rails and erect the buildings and other structures, all new, it is difficult to see any ground for assessing it at a larger sum. * * * The assessors are not bound by the estimate of the cost of reproduction given by the railroad or its agents. They may inquire into that question themselves and in their own way, but they have no right to disregard uncontradicted proof. It may in any case be competent to consider all the elements of value that they have considered in this case; but, in the end, when they come to make their decision as to value for the purpose of taxation, it may properly be much less, but can never exceed the actual cost of producing the property in the condition in which it is found by the assessors at the time of making the assessment. Such a rule of valuation is reasonable and possible."

Doubtless, it is both reasonable and possible to make assessments by the application of such a rule by parties having the proper facilities and the necessary information; but local assessors are not usually engineers, and have no means of ascertaining the cost of construction and no authority to employ a competent engineer for the purpose. The result is, that railroad assessments vary in different towns from $3,000 to $25,000 per mile of single track, and from $5,000 to $40,000 of double track. On the Hudson River Division of the New York Central system, in one town, the West Shore Railroad, with double tracks is assessed at $8,000 per mile, while on the opposite side of the river, only about a mile distant, the New York Central line of double track, with no better roadbed or buildings, is assessed at $40,000 per mile; and equally glaring inequalities of railroad as-assessments are to be found all over the State. It seems scarcely necessary to say that the unaided judgment of the ordinary assessor should not be relied upon to correct such manifestly absurd conditions.

If the present system of taxing personal property, and especially mortgages, is to continue, all county clerks should be required by law to keep a special record of the names and residences of the mortgagees in all mortgages recorded in their respective offices; such record to be open to the inspection of the assessors.

As the law now stands, assessors are required to assess mortgages to the owners thereof, but have no authority to employ counsel to search the records for the purpose of disclosing such ownership, and usually they are not qualified, nor are they expected to be qualified, to make the necessary search themselves.

A not uncommon method of dodging personal assessment is for the person assessed to appear before the assessors at the time appointed for hearing complaints, and make affidavit that he is not a resident of the town in which he is assessed. In such cases, the law should provide that the assessment should not be stricken off unless the complainant proves either that he has no personal property liable to assessment, or that he is assessed for personal property on the assessment-roll of the town which he claims as his residence.

It is further submitted that the law with regard to the place of taxation of personal property, should be changed so as to allow the assessment of tangible and visible personal property at the place where it is, rather than necessarily at the place of domicile of the owner. Such is the rule in Massachusetts, and it prevents the escape of a vast amount of personal property of a character which eludes assessment in this State. For instance, there are numerous residents of cities owning farms in country towns, on which are many thousand dollars worth of personal property liable to assessment, and not assessed, because the owner is not a resident of the town where the property is, and the assessors of the place of his residence have no knowledge of the existence of such property.

In our report of last year, we strongly urged the repeal of the present provision of law allowing the deduction of debts from personal assessment. At that time we quoted at considerable length from similar recommendations of various boards of State assessors, showing a remarkable unanimity of opinion on the part of those who had been brought most closely in contact with the evil results of this feature of the law. We desire to further quote from the report of the State Assessors to the Legislature from the year 1876, as follows:

“The late Governor Hunt, when Comptroller of the State, in his report in 1849 says, on the subject of deducting personal property from debts, ‘that a system which tolerates inequalities repugnant to justice and sound policy needs some amendment, will hardly be questioned.’

“The present Comptroller, in his able report of January 5, 1864, says, ‘it is difficult to discover any valid reason why personal property should enjoy the exemption which it does.’ It requires, to a far greater extent than real estate, the protection of government and law, and causes much the largest expense for police arrangement and the administration of justice. Why should it not pay its full share of such expense?”

“Mr. Hillhouse, in his very elaborate report, as Comptroller, in December 31, 1867, in which he discusses very fully the question of taxation, 'and the necessity of material changes in our system of taxation,' says, 'another inequality arising from the practical working of our tax laws is the right of off-set for debts, permitted to the holders of personal property and denied to real estate. What is wanted is a system of taxation that shall conform in its results as nearly as practicable to the maxim, that the citizens of a State should contribute toward the support of government in proportion to their respective abilities.'

"Judge Allen, when Comptroller of State, in his report of January 4, 1870, 'calls attention of the Legislature to the discrimination in favor of personal as against real property in the assessment laws, in that, that owners of personal property are allowed a deduction from the assessed valuation of such property to the amount of debts owing by them. This is believed to be unjust to real property and its holders, and unwise and inexpedient. The temptation to fraud and corruption is great, and not always resisted or overcome; and exemptions are not unfrequently allowed in fraud of the law, as well as of the honest taxpayer. The exemption has no foundation in principle.'

"In 1867, Chancellor Ogden, of New Jersey, chairman of a committee appointed to revise the Tax Laws, on the question of 'deductions,' says: 'If deductions be allowed from one kind of property, they can discover no satisfactory reasons why they should not be equally allowed from another,' and reported a bill taxing all property, real and personal, without any deductions.

"We believe there has been but one opinion among the distinguished gentlemen who have been Comptrollers of the State, as regards the injustice of allowing persons to deduct 'personal property' from their debts. This practice is the parent of fraud, and it holds out inducements for dishonesty and leads to temptations."

In the annual report of the State Assessors for the year 1883, after referring to their own former recommendations and the concurrent opinions of the Comptrollers and other financial officers of the State for many years advising that the deduction of indebtedness from personal assessment be abolished, the report proceeds as follows:

"Sustained by this array of authority and impelled by our own continued experience of wrongfulness of the present system, we earnestly request the Legislature to enact that no deduction for debts shall hereafter be made in the assessment of personal property. Such an enactment can not fail to speedily bring to the treasury from personal property at least from 30 to 40 per cent. of the taxes and a corresponding relief to the real estate. Various devices have been suggested to prevent the use of fictitious debts while retaining exemption of real debts. Thus it is proposed that only debts which were outstanding at a certain fixed date, some months before the assessment is made, or only debts which, at the time of assessment, are of a certain age, or only those of a particular class, may be deducted. But each of these propositions is only a transparent invitation to some easy form of evasion. To fix a date earlier than the assessment day for determining the amount of indebtedness would practically be to change the date of assessment itself in such cases. Each of the other plans would merely form an arbitrary standard without any basis in equity, and would discriminate against many debts which might have a stronger claim to exemption than others which it would allow. There is no remedy but in the entire abolition of this exemption. This State, from the first, has applied this rule to real estate, and the Legislature has repeatedly refused to change it, well knowing that it is impossible to retain the most trustworthy basis of taxation without serious and perhaps fatal impairment, if indebtedness were deducted. But every argument against applying the exemption to real estate applies with far greater force to personal property, as the latter is more easily transferred, encumbered or concealed."

In this connection we desire to call attention to language used by the commission appointed to inquire into the expediency of revising and amending the laws of Massachusetts in their very able report, to which we have before referred, as follows: "No deduction from the assessed stock in trade is now allowed for debts. Doubtless this is the best course, at all events the only possible course, for to allow such deduction would open the door to fraud and evasion through real, fictitious or adroitly arranged debts. This, we understand, is the consequence of allowing deductions for debts from all personal property in the State of New York."

It, therefore, appears that in this respect the working of our law is cited as a warning in neighboring States.

In Connecticut, three successive tax commissions have reported against deduction of debts from assessment.

In New Jersey, as far back as 1868, a tax commission created by joint resolution of the Senate and General Assembly, found that "frauds were practiced and inequalities arose because the law permitted the deduction of debts," and specifically advised "that deduction of debts be no longer permitted and the value of property held, whether personal or real, be made the basis of taxation."

Since then two other tax commissions in that State, one in 1879 and the other in 1890, have made similar recommendations.

In a report by a tax commission in Oregon, in the year 1890, the very first recommendation made was "that deduction of debts in any form be no longer permitted."

In Maryland, a similar commission reporting in 1888, advised "that debts be not deducted from the value of property."

In Iowa, in 1893, a commission to consider the general subject of taxation also recommended "that debts, including mortgages, should not hereafter be deducted from the true value of property."

In view of this remarkable unanimity on the part of those who have given the subject most consideration, in the opinion that, if personal property is to be assessed at all, there should be no deduction for debts, we urge this question upon the attention of the Legislature as being the most far-reaching and important reform which can be affected under the present system of the taxation of personal property in this State.

We also alluded in our report of last year to the inequality and injustice resulting from the present provisions of law in relation to savings banks. We believed then, and believe now, that our recommendation that a small uniform tax should be paid by the banks upon all deposits liable thereto, directly to the Comptroller of the State, and local assessors be relieved from all responsibility in the premises, was made in the interest both of the banks and of the depositors, although from the manner in which it was attacked by savings banks' officials, it seems to have been differently construed. This probably arose, however, from the fact that our treatment of the subject was from the standpoint of the Attorney-General's opinion that, under the present law, deposits in savings banks are taxable to the depositor; while, on the other hand, those opposed to the recommendation made, doubtless believe that the law now exempts such deposits both to the bank and the depositor.

In many localities in the State savings bank deposits have been assessed to the depositors to the full extent to which such deposits have become known to the assessors. In other localities no such assessment has been made or attempted.

The disputed question of the liability to assessment is now in course of litigation, and pending its judicial determination we make no further recommendation; but, in this connection, would call attention to the fact that in Massachusetts a State tax of one-half of 1 per cent. is levied on the average of deposits, yielding a revenue in 1896 of $1,291,256.47; and that in the recent report of the commission, from which we have already repeatedly quoted, the only question discussed was whether or not the amount of that tax ought to be increased.

In view of the fact that great dissatisfaction was expressed in New York city with the table of equalization made by the State Board in September last, as it affected that city, it may not be amiss to state some facts in relation thereto.

From the one-sided and misleading statements which for years past have appeared in the New York press in relation to this subject, it is not to be wondered at that the taxpayers of that city very generally believe that an unjust share of the State tax is borne by them, simply because the State Board of Equalization has the power to impose it, and that such power is arbitrarily used without regard to the demands of justice and equity.

The amount added to New York city by the equalization of 1897 was $88,988,103, and this sum, large as it is, represented the difference between 63 per cent., the rate at which New York was credited with being assessed relative to full value, and 66 plus per cent., the average rate fixed for the entire State.

We have availed ourselves of many sources of information in the effort to determine equitably the actual percentage of assessment in New York city to the full value of the property assessed, and we do firmly believe that the estimate of 63 per cent. is a liberal one.

In answer to numerous inquiries addressed to real estate brokers, lawyers and others whose business requires familiarity with the prices obtained on sales of real estate in New York city, we have been repeatedly assured that, while in a great majority of cases real estate was assessed in that city at about 60 per cent. of its full market value, yet in many cases of large holdings by wealthy estates and large corporations, the average of assessment would not exceed 40 per cent. And in certain testimony given by ex-Comptroller Fitch, in September last, before a commission appointed by the Supreme Court, as reported in the New York papers at the time, he stated, with reference to the ratio of assessments to prices paid for property bought for municipal purposes, that he had known the assessment to be 60 per cent. of the real value in some cases and as low as 30 per cent. in others.

The cost of new buildings erected and of improvements in New York city between 1880 and 1896, as shown by the estimates filed in the building department, was $932,982,485. The assessed value of real property in the year 1896 exceeded that of the year 1880 by $788,937,453, showing that the assessment of real property in The City of New York in 1896 was $144,045,032 short of the estimated cost of new buildings during that period, without regard to the increased value of the land exclusive of the buildings. It is only fair to say, however, that the tax commissioners of New York assert that the estimates of the cost of new buildings and improvements is very often exaggerated for the purpose of securing larger loans on bond and mortgage; but, on inquiry at the office of the building department, it was stated that while such was undoubtedly the case as regards a certain class of buildings erected for purposes of speculation, yet in more numerous instances the estimates fell short of the actual cost, and that in striking an average, the total cost would undoubtedly equal the sum total of the estimates filed; and, a recent writer on the general subject of taxation, in treating of this class of statistics, states that the actual cost of the buildings was more than 10 per cent. above the estimate. We have no knowledge of the source of information upon which he bases that statement.

The real estate in New York county was equalized in 1874 at $812,709,047. In 1897 it was equalized at $1,820,497,246; an increase in twenty-three years of $1,007,788,199, or 124 per cent. The other fifty-nine counties of the State were equalized in 1874 at $937,989,871, and in 1897 at $2,221,329,340, an increase of $1,283,339,469, or 136.8 per cent. If the equalized value of real estate in the county of New York had increased in the same ratio as in the other counties during the same period to wit, 136.8 per cent., it would have been in 1897, $1,924,495,023, or $103,997,776 more than the sum at which it was equalized in that year; and there would have been added to the assessed value the sum of $192,985,880 instead of the sum of $88,988,103, the amount which was added to the local assessment.

From the outcry which was raised in the newspapers, it would naturally be supposed that the equalization of 1897 was the culmination of a long series of outrages on the part of the State Board, and yet as far back as 1878 there was added to the assessment of New York city by the State equalization of that year the sum of $191,850,766, or $103,862,663 more than the amount added in 1897; and does anyone doubt that the increase in the actual value of real estate in The City of New York has been greater than in other parts of the State, especially in view of the fact that in exclusively agricultural communities there has been a steady decline in values during that period.

In 1880, the assessed value of real property in The City of New York was $942,571,690. In 1896, it was $1,731,509,143, an increase during sixteen years of $788,937,453, or 83 per cent. In Monroe county, in 1880, the assessed value of real estate was $66,915,096; in 1896 it was $135,295,196; an increase of $68,380,100, or 121 per cent. In Kings county, in 1880, the assessed value of real estate was $235,101,272; in 1896, it was $555,310,997, an increase of $320,209,725; or 136 per cent. In Erie county, in 1880, the assessed value of real estate was $110,090,591; in 1896, it was $266,493,436; an increase of $156,402,845, or 142 per cent. Yet probably most residents of the "Imperial City," as they were proud to call it even before its recent enlargement, would have been unwilling to admit that there was a greater rate of increase in the value of real estate either in Brooklyn, Buffalo or Rochester during that period than in New York.

We were repeatedly told by the tax commissioners in New York city that by a comparative list of sales of real estate and assessments of the same, made at their instance in the several counties of the State in the year 1886, it was shown that New York city was assessed at a higher percentage than the other counties. By reference, however, to the annual report of the State Assessors for that year to the State Board of Equalization, we find that that statement is by no means undisputed, and we quote from that report as follows:

“New York presented sales lists from each of the counties of the State except Hamilton and St. Lawrence, tending to show the ratio of assessment of real property in the State for the preceding year. Upon the tables so presented, this Board was asked to equalize. Since that time we have made a careful examination of the sales lists referred to, and many counties have promised lists of sales tending to disprove the statements shown by the lists furnished by New York county. From our examination of lists furnished, we unhesitatingly reached the conclusion that the lists furnished by New York county are almost wholly worthless and unreliable, and the same conclusion is reached as to a large proportion of the lists furnished in reply.

As a few instances among many showing the uncertainty of the sales tables, we may instance the fact that New York gave thirty-three sales in Chenango county, showing an average assessed value of 50 per cent., while Chenango county cites over 1,000 sales between July 1, 1883, and July 1, 1885, showing an average assessment of 92 per cent.

Yates county presents tables showing an assessment of 75 per cent. of sales value as against 50 per cent., claimed by New York as the assessment of that county. Steuben county shows 80 per cent. on sales as against 43 per cent. claimed by New York. Ulster county shows 80 per cent. as against 75 per cent. shown by New York. Tioga county shows 81 and 58-100 per cent. as against 68 per cent. shown by New York. Chemung shows 85 per cent. as against 47 shown by New York. Kings shows 76 and 7-100 as against 69 shown by New York. Genesee 68 as against 60 shown by New York. Yates 82 and 8-100 as against 50 per cent. shown by New York. Orleans 81 as against 60 shown by New York. Queens 78 as against 32 per cent. as shown by New York. Rensselaer 80 as against 33 shown by New York. Delaware 79 as against 42, and Columbia 78 as against 39 per cent. shown by New York. And all the statements are verified by public officials of the several counties named.

We have used these lists for what they are actually worth and as a part of the evidence taken to reach conclusions, but, standing alone, they are alike unreliable, misleading and deceptive."

We have given so much space to the consideration of this subject, because, as stated in the opening pages of this report, the increase in the assessment of real property in the State at large, outside of The City of New York, indicates a higher rate of assessment to a greater extent than it represents an actual increase of real estate values. As a necessary consequence, in the equalization of next year the average percentage for the State at large will be higher; and, unless it shall be shown that the ratio of assessment to full value in New York county has correspondingly increased, the amount to be added by the equalization of 1898 will be greatly in excess of that in 1897. And such increase of ratio in New York is not indicated by the fact that the estimated cost of new buildings and improvements, as filed in the office of the Department for Buildings for 1896 is $80,357,827, while the increase in the assessment of real property for 1897 over that of 1896 in The City of New York is only $55,677,648.

During the year 1897, appeals from local equalization have been heard and decided in the counties of Monroe, Clinton and Montgomery.

STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

At a meeting of the State Board of Equalization, held at the office of the Secretary of State, in the city of Albany, on the 7th day of September, 1897, Present.—Secretary of State, John Palmer; Attorney-General, Theodore E. Hancock; State Treasurer, Addison B. Colvin; Speaker of the Assembly, James M. E. O'Grady; State Tax Commissioners, Martin Heermance, Edward L. Adams, Rollin L. Jenkins.

The following report was submitted:

To the State Board of Equalization:

The State Board of Tax Commissioners respectfully submit the following:

The assessed value of real and personal property, taxable locally for all purposes in the State of New York for the year 1896, shows a net gain of $138,272,791 over the assessment of 1895, as against a net gain for the year 1895 over the year 1894 of $76,630,736.

In conformity with the requirement of the revised tax law, which went into effect on the 15th day of June, 1896, we have made every effort to enforce the provision of the law requiring that all property, real and personal, be assessed at full value.

We have been in frequent communication with the local assessors throughout the State; and, from reports received up to this time, have every reason to believe that the assessment for the year 1897 will show a large increase over that of 1896, particularly in the matter of personal property.

We have visited during the year the counties of New York, Suffolk, Queens, Richmond, Sullivan, Rockland, Dutchess, Ulster, Cattaraugus, Steuben, Livingston, Monroe, Schuyler, Chenango, Otsego, Delaware, Oneida, Schoharie, Rensselaer, Greene, Lewis, Fulton, Hamilton, Schenectady, Washington, Warren, Clinton, Franklin and Essex.

We have examined into the value of several thousand separate parcels of real estate in said counties, comparing the same with the assessments thereof, and committees appointed by the boards of supervisors of various counties in the State have presented, for our consideration, data relating to the methods of assessment in these counties, all of which is herewith submitted, together with a list of percentages and a table of equalization based thereon.

ROLLIN L. JENKINS,

State Board of Tax Commissioners.

* By a clerical error the amount of stenographers' fees, $338, was omitted from consideration by the committee to apportion the State tax. The Board afterward, by resolution, directed that the amount be paid out of the contingent fund.

I. A. E. Seymour, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of the county of Cortland, do hereby certify that the preceding is a true statement of the aggregate valuation of the real and personal estate in the several towns and wards in said county, as corrected by said Board of Supervisors, at their annual meeting in the month of November, 1897.
